

Stephanie's Story

Stephanie Pettway, U.S. Department of Defense

My cause is families and children because I believe if we have strong families, we will have resilient communities; therefore, it is my goal to take every opportunity to make a profound impact at alleviating some of the pressures and stress experienced by families and children. When I was a little girl, my family fell on hard times. Our home caught fire and there were financial difficulties. Neighbors helped us when my family had a difficult time helping ourselves. Funding through CFC has had a huge impact on my cause. Many people need our help, and the CFC is a safe tool to get the resources to them. Through the CFC millions of people are helped, millions of lives are changed, and millions of dollars are given to research to help cure diseases.

“My cause is families and children because I believe if we have strong families, we will have resilient communities. Many people need our help, and the CFC is a safe tool to get the resources to them. Through the CFC millions of people are helped, millions of lives are changed, and millions of dollars are given to research to help cure diseases.”

